CONNOLLY IS ELECTED SUCCESSOR TO GRESSER IN BOROUGH OF QUEENS

Gets Three Votes to Two at Meeting of Aldermen Called by Mayor.

IS ONLY 31 YEARS OLD.

New Official Issues Statement
Promising to Clean House.

While the corridors of the City Hall and the end of the building given over to the use of the Mayor buzzed today with rumors Aldermen D. Blinoholt, Independence League; A. Dufat, Democrat, and W. Augustus Shipley, Republican, of Queens, elected by their votes, Maurice E. Connolly President of the Borough, to succeed Lawrence Gresser, who was removed by the Governor. The rumors were to the effect that there was a bribery fund of $10,000. Alderman Shipley was the only man of the three to make any remarks.

He said he had been hounded by politicians and driven from his home over the question of electing a Borough President. He declared that in voting for Connolly he was fulfilling what he considered to be his duty to the best interests of the people of the Borough of Queens.

Alderman A. Brady and Frederick Snell, Democrats, voted for Leonard C. L. Smith, Consulting Engineer of the Borough.

When the vote was announced Mayor Gaynor, arising and grabbing his hat, said to the clerk of the meeting: "Make out his certificate. He's elected."

STORIES OF SCANDAL ARE AFLOAT.

Although Connolly received his certificate and was sworn in the election does not put an end to the scandal that has been swirling in Queens for many days. District Attorney McWitt is in the possession of charges of corruption that warrant an investigation.

The meeting in the Mayor's room at the City Hall was dramatic. Outside the space reserved for the five Queens Aldermen, the Mayor and the clerk of the meeting the room was jammed with politicians and office-holders from Queens. When there was no more space in the room the assemblage piled itself up in the corridor. The overflow stood along clear to the main entrance of the City Hall.

WAS SECRET MEETING IN NEW JERSEY.

It was reported before the proceedings began that the Mayor had received two anonymous letters—one on Monday, the other this morning—in which charges were made that three Aldermen had gone to New Jersey a month ago and there entered into a conspiracy to elect Connolly to the office of Gresser's removal. New Jersey was chosen for the alleged meeting, the rumor said, because the Aldermen had been advised they could not be prosecuted in this State for any agreement they might make in another State.

Mayor Gaynor refused to say anything about the receipt of letters, anonymous or otherwise. He took no action of any kind beyond presiding at the meeting and announcing the result of the vote.

At 10:30 o'clock, the time set for the meeting, Aldermen Dufat, Brady and Snell were present. Blinoholt and Shipley were missing. Brady, square-faced and impassive, sat at the corner of the table and looked at the walk Dufat and Snell were nervous.

In opening the meeting the Mayor asked if all the Queens Aldermen were about. No one answered.

"If the two absentees do not appear," said the Mayor, "I shall proceed with the meeting. Under the charter I have the right to cast the deciding vote."

Mothers of Orange, N. J.,
Youngsters Left It With Long Island Clerk.

ROMEO 15, JULIET 14.

Disappeared Last Saturday and Tried Twice to Have Knot Tied.

Somewhere in the wilds of Long Island City are Arthur Edward James, fifteen years and five months old, and Miss Ruth Jane Day, burdened lightly with some fourteen winters and one extra summer. Both are from South Orange, N. J., and their presence in Long Island City may be summed up in the well known phrase—object, matrimony.

So far as could be learned to-day the great desire that spurred this modern Romeo and Juliet into eloping from their parental estates has not been realized. However, it is up to the youngsters themselves now, for in the office of City Clerk Wenz, in Long Island City, reposes a perfectly good marriage license, signed by the mothers of the elopers, and all they have to do is show up before Mr. Wenz, grab the license, find an obliging minister and go back to their forlorn relatives and three square South Orange meals a day.

The young lovers left their parental abodes last Saturday. They were first heard from in Jersey City, where ruthless and cold-blooded city officials smiled grimly upon them and refused to issue the desired license. And this in spite of the fact that Arthur had his new long trousers—donned for the first time the first day of school this year, and Ruth had her hair done up and had let down the hem of her skirt.

CLERK PROMISED TO SEND LICENSE TO THEIR PARENTS.

Then the youngsters skipped over to Long Island City and applied to the genial Mr. Wenz, who beamed tenderly upon them when they gave their ages as twenty-one and eighteen, respectively.

"Children," he said, "you will have to get permission from your parents or guardians before I can give you a license. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll send a license to your folks at home and if they sign it and send it back I'll let you out with a fine, brand new A. No. 1 license that will make any minister in Long Island City eager to tie the knot. Come back in a day or so."

The license was duly sent to Mrs. Day. The startled mother dashed over to Mrs. James and a hasty conference was held. It resulted in both mothers signing the license, which was sent back to City Clerk Wenz.

Mr. Wenz said to-day he had seen nothing more of his little friends, but expected them to drop in for the license some day. They had given no word at which they could be found in Long Island City, nor had they sent their anxious parents any word of their whereabouts, but it was thought they would surely come back for the license and hasten to the nearest Episcopal church.

Meanwhile their parents eagerly await their return to South Orange. The only objection to the match was the somewhat tender age of the pair, but both families are willing now to forgive and to recognize Mr. Edward and his bride, Mrs. Ruth.

Edward's father even goes so far as to say he will take the lad into partnership in his painting and decorating business, and the Days have agreed that, as they have the larger house of

(Special to The Evening World.)

WASHINGTON PARK, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 4.—By winning the game from Brooklyn this afternoon the Giants clinched the National League pennant and became the official candidate of the old league against the Philadelphia Athletics of the world's championship. Even if they should lose all the rest of the remaining nine games, and the Cubs should win all of them, New York would still have won the pennant by a safe margin. They have but nine more games to play, and as the Cubs have already lost ten more than New York, it would be a mathematical impossibility for the Giants to lose enough games for the Cubs to tie them.

The honor of pitching this deciding game was given to Mathewson, and he showed himself to be in perfect form by blanking Brooklyn for nine innings with the utmost ease. At no time did Brooklyn have a chance.

Manager Dahlen adhered to his determination of giving the Giants the best he had in the shop by pitching Rucker, his star pitcher, in the box. In fact he brought Rucker here from the South for this express purpose. The Brooklyn star was in great form, but the Giants rapped him for one run in the fourth, and that proved enough to win.

In the last half of the eighth, Rucker was taken out to make room for a better and knicker pitched the last inning. The Giants cracked him for another run and made the lead safe. After today the older members of the Giant team will be given a rest as he is not ready for the world's series.

Neither team was able to keep in the first inning, though the Brooklyn gang got two hits off Matty and gave an out to a spare. Northern opened with a single into center, but was joined out by Daubert. Wheat landed another single, sending Daubert to third, but when he tried to take second Devlin intercepted

BET BOTH ENDS OF STOCK DEAL AND STILL LOST

Brooklyn Cabinetmaker Has Brokers Arrested After His $400 Flyer in Market.

Maurice Neubauer of No. 306 Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, to-day appealed to Magistrate Kemper to explain how it came about that he could bet $200 that Union Pacific would go up and $200 more that Union Pacific would go down and then lose both bets. Incidentally, he caused the arrest of Adam Rabin and John Hermann, doing business at No. 29 Broad street, on the charge of grand larceny.

Many a wiser speculator than Neubauer, full of experience in Wall street, has asked the same question time and time again, and paradoxical as it may seem, the full possibilities of getting beat while playing both ends of the stock market against the middle have been demonstrated.

Both Rabin and Hermann, after being held under bonds of $200 each for further hearing, declared they had bought and sold Union Pacific for Neubauer and the transactions were in regular form and would be shown to be legitimate.

Neubauer said he was a cabinetmaker and saw in a German newspaper an advertisement holding out the allurements of speculation. After reading it he went to the Hermann & Rabin firm and was advised to buy and sell Union on thirty and sixty days option. He told the Court he figured that he was $200 ahead of the game and called for his money, only to be told he had lost both bets.

WILL West Show For Taft.

CHICAGO, WIS., Oct. 4.—President Taft saw a lot of old west today. On Monday he did not merely watch him drive through the streets and listen to Presidential orators, but "Frontier Days" with leading townsmen, with rays and the hosts within about in wild cow shows were revealed for the President's benefit. The reception committee made the show as nearly as possible like one held a few weeks ago, and six-five performers appeared before Mr. Taft.

In addition to the show, the President's programme included an automobile ride through the city, a review of troops and an address in an arena house. His train was scheduled to make two stops in Wyoming today, and should reach Salt Lake City tomorrow.

POLICE WIND CHAIN OF EVIDENCE AROUND MAN IN TAXI CASE

Girl Student Wormed the Story of Sixth Avenue Killing Out of Admirer at Picnic and Gave the Tip to Detectives.

THREE WITNESSES SAY
GARVEY FIRED SHOT.

War Veteran, Who Identifies Him, Declares the Prisoner Pointed the Revolver at Him Also

Martin Garvey, who has been identified by three witnesses as the "taxicab slayer," was held this afternoon by Magistrate Corrigan in Jefferson Market Court for examination Monday afternoon upon the charge of killing Adolf Stern, a clerk for Jeweller Jacob Jacoby, during the daring robbery of Jacoby's store at Sixth avenue and Thirteenth street on the night of July 22. William E. Demarest, a driver of No. 49 Grove street, was also held as a material witness.

Jefferson Market Court was crowded when the two men were brought over to-day for arraignment. Garvey's mother and aunt were among the spectators and nearly all of the lower west side had turned out to watch the proceedings. Two lawyers asked for an adjournment until Monday for the preparation of the defense and the prosecution did not oppose the request.

The arraignment came after three witnesses had positively identified Garvey as the man who had shot and killed the Jeweller's clerk. All of them saw the actual shooting, and all of them picked Garvey both from his pictures and from a personal inspection, as the taxicab driver saw commit the crime.

BULGING EYES HELPED WITNESSES TO PICK HIM OUT.

The great, bulging eyes of the man who is accused of the murder were the means of his being charged definitely with the slaying of Stern. Little by little, through the many misstatements that followed the arrest of Garvey and of Demarest last night, there came today the real story of the solution of a murder mystery that has baffled the police since the very moment of its happening.

The true story deals with the smart work of a young girl under the direction of a tipster long known to the police as a valued source of information. During last summer there lived at Jamaica, L. I., Samuel Webberman, whose home in New York is at No. 433 East Houston street. Webberman's Jamaica home was near a number of parks where picnics are held during the season.

Frequently there came to his house his sister-in-law, Beatrice Wolfe, a young girl of seventeen, who is preparing herself for a position as teacher. The affairs given at the neighboring picnic grounds were usually "dollar rackets," by which name is known the variety of entertainment for which a person pays a dollar and in return gets all of the privileges of the picnic, together with all of the drinks that he or she can consume.

On the first Sunday in August such an affair was given at Allenkirks Grove. The little Wolfe girl was present. So was William Demarest, Demarest asked for a dance. They became very friendly and the girl introduced her brother-in-law, Webberman, to her new found friend.

DEMAREST WARNED THEM AWAY AFTER FIGHT STARTED.

After the dance some of the young people engaged in a fight on the outskirts of the crowd, which fight followed the holding up of a man with more money than dignity. Webberman saw the fight and the hold-up.

"For heaven's sake get away from here and shut up," Demarest told him. "You don't want to see this."

As far as you like, I don't care if you tell the news," Webberman replied, the better to get his information sources working.
